Our software helps the Hungarian market leader real estate developer to stay organized. The project meant a software design challenge: we had to develop an integrated solution to manage retail buildings, office buildings, parking lots, empty lots, and residential properties. The company needed a single system to administer various information: besides the different types of real estate blocks, the database keeps records of an extensive amount and divergent kind of rental data too.

We set the bar higher with the software: our goal was not only building a well-organized portfolio but also designing a system that can assist the controlling team, the sales team, and the analyst team. Ingatlantár has sophisticated user management to handle permissions, and it has a very fast search engine, which provides data and reports to users in real-time.
